Mr. Parsons owns a five-acre lot on Rte. 2, next to the West Bethel Cemetery, and envisions moving his Ta-Ka-Radi operation from his home, on the Flat Road, to the new location. He plans a packing and shipping building, plus a storefront and office, along Rte. 2. Behind this light industrial enterprise, he envisions 16 low-cost apartments, in four clusters of four. Mr. Parsons told the board he would hope the two-bedroom, 800-square-foot apartments could rent for $300 to $400 a month. He said he would expect to build the apartments in two phases, with eight units in each phase.

Other plans for the west side of town were presented by Brad Barker, who would like to build a new garage/office building at his Bethel Auto Sales. After it is completed, he would tear down the existing building. "Everything will be the way it is now," he told the board. "It'll just have a facelift."

He presented a sketch plan showing a shed-roof building with two garage bays, plus office and conference space. The board approved a three-lot sub-division on the Middle Intervale Road for

Rep. Snowe says budget deficit is biggest problem

Second District Congresswoman Olympia Snowe is spending the House of Representatives' spring recess touring her district. Monday she held a public forum in Bethel to hear constituent concerns and to explain her positions. About two dozen area voters were at the Bethel Inn Conference Center to meet her. Rep. Snowe told them the most pressing problem facing the Congress this session is the federal budget deficit. It is "absolutely essential," she said, to reduce the deficit in order to calm the financial markets. She said the House has until April 15 to come up with a solution—which means trimming $40 billion from the deficit in FY90. She added that it was unlikely the House would meet the deadline. She said she was hopeful that the Congress and the administration could find enough to cut from the proposed budget so that the deficit could be trimmed without adding more tax revenues. She said, however, that President George Bush may have to be flexible on his desire to increase the military budget by the percentage of inflation. Louise Lincoln asked Ms. Snowe if she saw any chance for a line item veto to be added to the President's powers in order to keep pork barrel items out of the budget bill. Mrs. Snowe said she doubted the Congress would pass a bill giving the President that power. (Former-President Ronald Reagan said it was imperative for the chief executive to have

Matt, according to his father, Greg Cummings, has now been moved out of intensive care and into a rehabilitation ward at Central Maine Medical Center, in Lewiston.

According to Mr. Cummings, Matt has made marked progress the past week and can now move all of his limbs and can recognize everyone. "He's doing great," he said.

The doctors at the hospital have been surprised at Matt's recovery so far, Mr. Cummings said. Considering his injuries, he's a lot further ahead than they would have predicted, he said. But, he added, "We've still got a long road ahead of us." Matt's mother, Kathy Cummings, gets brother Mitch off to school in the morning and then stays with Matt at the hospital. His father has resumed his job as construction supervisor at Sunday River Ski Resort. After work, he relieves Kathy at Matt's bedside and she returns home to Bethel.

Containers are still in evidence around town for donations to ease the financial burden on the family. At Prim's, where Mrs. Cummings had worked for many years before her son's accident, visiting skiers, as well as local residents, have been donating to the fund.

Haste makes waste

Last week the Bethel Board of Selectmen, upon recommendation of the town manager and the chief of police, authorized the purchase of a used, 1982 radar gun for $400. The vote was 3-0 in favor of the purchase, although Selectman Peter Haines went along unenthusiastically with Selectmen Pat Dooen and Arlan Jodrey.

Why the board decided to jump at the chance to purchase a used radar gun is difficult to fathom. The Town had been offered a new radar gun earlier in the year for the same price as the used one-$400. The state director of the Bureau of Safety, Richard Perkins, told The Citizen his office sent notices to all municipal and county police forces told that the adult world was trying to in the state at the beginning of the year asking them to apply for matching funds for the purchase of new, $1,100 radar guns. He told The Citizen that the Town of Bethel, with a long stretch of 55mph road, and without a radar to help enforce the speed limit, might have been in a good position to receive a matching grant. (The bureau, using federal funds, offered the interested towns $700 towards the new radars if they put up $400.)

Mr. Perkins said about 60 towns applied for the radar guns; 30 received the grants. Bethel did not apply, the director said. Ironically, South Paris was one of the towns that received one of the new radar guns, and it is South Paris' old radar that the Town of Bethel

Also ironically, now that Bethel has a radar gun, it is unlikely the town would be in the running for a new one when the state matching grants are offered next year. Director Perkins said his office would likely not consider a request from a small police department that state. "I'm sure no grower is going to over-use it," he said. "The stuff is

It seems that town officials have gotten the notion that the town coffers are awash in money this year due to the revaluation last year, and that this year is the time to go out and buy anything that has been sitting on the wish list.

While it is true that there is more property valuation on the tax rolls bumper crop for him. In terms of size, this year, it is also true that any increased taxes placed against that color, and quantity, "This year we provaluation will still have to be paid mainly by local taxpayers. Thus, while the valuation is newly found, additional taxes on these properties will still cause hardship to local taxpayers. If the municipal net budget goes up 27 percent—as proposed—and the school district assessment goes up 14 percent—as proposed—there will be some howls of sprayed with Alar, local school districts greatest killers?

Before spending money, local and school officials must formulate realistic policies and earmark—in reasonable budgets—the funds needed to carry out these policies. In the case of a radar gun, if policymakers felt the town needed one, they should have factored it into the current year's budget and then sought to get the best one they could at the lowest price they could. This was not done. bfw

Is a tax cap the answer?

With school districts and municipalities taking more and more—in percentage terms-of taxpayers' income, many municipalities are discussing tax caps. There is also some agitation to have a statewide tax cap, such as Massachusetts' Proposition 2½, which places a 2½ percent increase limit on all municipal budgets.

Just last week, citizens in Rumford proposed to their selectmen a very radical spending cap, which would have markedly reduced the municipal budget. The selectmen declined to even put the proposal on the town meeting warrant.

In the past year, seven Maine communities have voted on tax/spending cap proposals and several more are scheduled to vote this spring. Four-Bath, South Portland, Alfred and York-have approved them. Two-Augusta and Bangor-have rejected them. And one-

Rockland—repealed a cap that had been in place for four years. As for a tax or spending cap on a school administrative district, while a possibility, it has never been attempted by taxpayers of any SAD. State school officials get nervous when even questioned about the idea.

First of all, what is the difference between a tax cap and a spending cap? As explained by the Maine Municipal Association, a tax cap is a limit on the annual increase of local property taxes. This increase could be stated as a percentage increase above the previous year's tax total, or as a percentage increase in the tax rate. Often the percentage increases are tied to an inflationary indicator, such as the Con- To the Editor: sumer Price Index. Some caps—such as Massachusetts' Prop. 21/2—can be overridden by a two-thirds vote of Town Meeting.

A spending cap is a limit on the total budget, whether the municipal budget or the school budget. A spending cap does not directly restrict come on the market in recent years. Exan increase in property taxes. For example, a 2½ percent spending perts predict that this trend will cap could translate into a tax increase, a tax decrease, or neitherdepending on how much taxable valuation had increased or decreased.

The MMA points out that property taxes in Maine are going up much faster recently than in the past. In 1987, Maine communities collected 14 percent more in property taxes than they did in 1986. In 1988, Maine communities collected 121/2 percent more than they did in 1987. At the same time, the Consumer Price Index was increasing an average of only about 4½ percent a year.

Proponents of tax caps or spending caps argue that taxpayers are tional access to these lands that citizens being taxed right off their property and that only by capping taxes can have enjoyed for generations will erode they force elected officials to budget carefully, without giving in to as the buyers of new summer homes post pressure groups, and without wasting precious resources. Proponents and fence their properties. These lands also believe that capping taxes would send a strong message to Augusta that state mandates cannot be met without state aid.

Opponents say that tax or spending caps remove flexibility from local government and local school administrations. They also contend that caps subvert the democratic process by tying the hands of those elected to be representatives of the people. Opponents also argue that in communities where Town Meeting is the ultimate taxing and spending authority, a cap actually reduces the authority of Town Meeting.

If local taxes continue to rise at their present rates—both in the towns and in the school district—it is almost a certainty that residents will want to look more closely at capping taxes. It is interesting to note that in Massachusetts-known for its heavy taxation—the percentage of tax revenues, statewide, derived from property taxes actually dropped in the 10 years during which Proposition 21/2 has been in effect from 40 percent before Prop. 21/2, to 31 percent today. In Maine, on the other hand, the percentage of taxes collected from property taxes con- allowing for the protection of pristine tinues to increase. A tax cap is certainly a vial

Letters Policy

The Citizen loves to receive letters. They may be on any subject of interest and on any side of any issue. Letters to be considered for publication must be signed and should have the phone number of the letterwriter so that, in case there are any questions, the letter-writer can be contacted.

While, generally, letters are printed as written, the editor reserves the right to edit any letter for clarity, ength, grammar and spelling, facmalness, and decency.

Letters meant for publication in the week's paper should be in The Citizen office by Monday noon.

CORRECTIONS

In the March 22 issue there were three errors. On page 1, the caption on the lower photo should have identified Sarah Rackliffe as the student and Kelly Vascik as the volunteer, instead of vice versa. On page 9, in the planning board agenda, the James Westcott subdivision was misidentified as being on the Gore Road. It is on Bird Hill Road.

On page 1, the date of Woodstock Town Meeting was mistakenly listed as Tuesday; it was held Monday. (See this. week's story on page 1.) The Citizen regrets any inconvenience caused by the errors.

A note from the publisher

Is the great food scare of 1989 over? Can I once again munch a bunch of grapes? Give an apple to a favorite teacher without being arrested for at-

However, look at the damages: kids poison them with tainted apples, let alone tainted grapes; anti-American demonstrations in Chile; federal food inspectors working overtime; economic displacement for growers, shippers, importers, truckers, wholesalers and food

And for what? Two grapes, which, if eaten, would have made a person mildly ill, and 5 percent of the apple crop. Bethel apple grower Herb Lyon gave up spraying his trees with Alar two years ago. Not because he thought it was harmful to humans, he says, but because he could see that sooner or later the public was going to force the government to outlaw it. He said he used it quite sparingly, as did other apple growers in the expensive.

CONDO-MANIA HITS BETHEL TOWN OFFICE? In an unusual Saturday, April 1st meeting, the Bethel Board of Selectmen are to discuss the possibility of selling the Cole Block to a developer for a condominium project. The developer, Phoule & Co., of Portland, is said to want to construct four two-story condominum units above the town office, in the former Odeon Hall. Also to be turned into two condominiums would be the back end of the Cole Block, presently rented by Citizen Press Inc. as a newspaper office and print shop. Town officials, faced with a proposed budget increase of 27 percent, are said to be looking for new sources of revenue so as not to have to increase taxes. Town officials say the developer is offering $400,000 for the historic structure and would allow the Town to continue using the downstairs offices at a nominal rental.

and the leadership of both parties in Congress to authorize $4.5 million a month in humanitarian aid for the remaining Nicaraguan Contra forces now living in exile in Honduras. The agreement would fund the Contras at this level for 10 months, until it became clear whether the Nicaraguan government would live up to its pledge to hold democratic elections next February.

She said she wasn't sure how many Contras were still being funded by the U.S.—possibly 10,000 to 12,000, she said. (If 10,000, that would mean each Contra would receive $450 a month.)

She said Secretary of State James Baker had told her earlier that the Bush administration would have a more conciliatory foreign policy. She called this a realistic approach, given the divisiveness caused by the former policy of trying to militarily overthrow the Nicaraguan government. "Without bipartisanship, I don't think any American foreign policy can survive in Latin American," she said.

Jim Fiske asked her if she saw any future for the NATO alliance, and she said she did-but the future working arrangement would have to be different from the present in light of Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's proposals to scale back Warsaw Pact military forces. I have heard some people say, "Why must we have March?"

Why? Because that's how spring comes to Maine. Each day grows a little warmer and the snow melts more. It doesn't burst on us in a blaze of heat, so we do not put away our woolens on the first warm day.

The spring in Maine comes slowly. I think it's "calculating" the idea of coming at all. Often after green grass comes, a wet snow arrives and clings to the light poles. We shovel once more. The robins that have arrived come out from their hiding places and urge us to "Cheer up, cheer up, spring is coming!" And it does. But meantime we are apt to remove from the bed one of the blankets that the next night has to be put on again.

I can recall several happy days of March. The first that comes to my mind is "crust time." No, not bread crust, definintely. It's the crust of snow formed after a warm day followed by a cold night, which freezes hard enough to hold any person. We could climb hills which we had not visited since October. Then we coasted on our sleds as long as the crust would hold us.

March brings us mornings when we can look out at jeweled hills after an ice storm. Everything is sparkling with lovely diamonds. I always like to select a certain gem that may have dropped from an angel's crown. It could be on a bush, a roof, or a dead tree-but nothing distracted from its luster. Later, a jealous sun came out and picked them ill, even those from a dying oak—the queen, with her tiara of diamonds. the northern sky. I hurried to see what band and he's left a very big void in all was happening. It was just what I our lives. We are going to miss him. The ground temperatures this week, as were bright. The Plus Side

The recent Catastrophic Care Legislation raised almost as many questions as it answered. Some of those most commonly asked are:

Question—"Do I need more than one health insurance policy to go along with Medicare?"

Answer-No, as long as the one policy you have covers the Medicare deductibles and co-insurance. At the present time, Medicare will provide unlimited hospital coverage after you pay an annual deductible of about $560. If you presently have Medigap insurance, you may want to hold onto it until more of the benefits from the Catastrophic Care bill are in place.

Question—"Will the Catastrophic Care bill cover doctor's expenses?" Answer-Not yet, but as of January 1990 the maximum you will have to pay out-of-pocket for doctor's expenses will be $1,370 a year.

Keep an eye out for developments in the implementation of the Catastrophic Care bill and for further information call your local Agency on Aging, or write, Maine Committee on Aging, State House Station 127, Augusta, 04333.

Fran Tyler, coordinator of the high Conservation Camp, at York Pond, school parent volunteer program, spoke to the committee about their group's efforts. She expressed concern and frustration over the slow progress made in the last month in implementing the program. They have 15 volunteers who are anxious to begin working with students in the classroom and as yet this had not hap-pened. Her members are unsure of the administration's support of them in terms of qualifications and commitment. The volunteers want to work with

We shift from frosty nights to warm days, hail to rain, sun to snow, and back again. Everyone around here is battling a cold-fluconsumption kind of bug. We seem to pass in and out of its clutches in turn. But it hasn't dampened our community spirit

Last week, we gathered at the West Bethel Union Church for a fellowship supper. That's an occasion when the members pool their potluck in private (the public has to wait till spring). About a score of us enjoyed the feasting and the fellowship as we used the occasion to bid farewell to Guenther and Barbara Mahler. They are leaving Bethel to return to the Arlington, Vt., area from which they most recently hailed. Barbara hopes to be reassigned to Forest Service duty there; Guenther will be assuming new duties as general manager of a furniture manufacturing the loop through the forest on our skis plant (guess where I'll be heading for my next mahogany mission). We'll miss their company, but we wished them "Bon Chance" as we presented them with a full moon as our guide. Meanwhile, back on the farm, Rupert Grover and brother-in-law Dewey Thayer were busy tapping into the maples because something in their ken told them that it was time to make syrup. My timing was off, so I can't describe the process yet (maybe next week). Somehow, with the help of fire and elbow grease, jars of syrup are lining up on the counter. I hope to get into the production line for yet another new experience. Speaking of which...the other night there was one of those that will rank right up there with "Peak Experiences I Have (Becky Kendall had done it the night before; it was Donald's turn with the cold). We set out at about 9:30 with the then to listen to the silence, or contemplate the starry sky, or just check out our bearings. We followed our own shadows around the two miles-ish trail, sometimes slipping, sometimes sailing, always alert to the changes. The moon was our night light for most of the ride; there were a few stretches of darkness where our ears were our eyes. And then, all too soon, we emerged from the forest and crossed the field to the house and warmth and cocoa. Needless to say, that was an adventure and hen some.

There will be lots more adventures, I'm sure, as we dig into our new life in the hills. Come up and share in them. Oh, by the way, I heard from Barbara Bush

By VIVA WHITMAN I am sorry that my writing didn't get into the paper last week. Several of you have asked what happened and I can't tell you as I don't know. I sent it on the usual day of the week but it must have gotten held up somewhere so it didn't get there on time. I was disappointed also as I had written about a coat that I had given to a friend that got taken at West Paris dance the last time. I don't know whether it was taken by mistake or not but hope that was the case and that it will be returned. I had sent it for Charlotte Cole to have. She had placed the bag it was in over her coat upstairs and whenshe was ready to go home the bag was gone. The coat used to be my mother's and I thought she might have liked to have Charlotte have it as she always liked her real well so whoever took it, please return it to Charlotte, Peggy or to Mary Lovejoy and she will see that it is return-

A very interesting program on "Old Bottles" was presented by Richard Dennison, of Norway. The next meeting will be on April 17, with a potluck supper at 6 p.m. Sayward and Cynthia Lamb will serve on the supper committee. Newton Lamb celebrated his birthday last Sunday with a family gathering at his home. Those present were Judy and Mike McLaughlin, Nina, Kyra and Kelly, A.F.S. student, Karen Jordan, Peggy Lamb and John Beane of Gorham; Ken Lamb and Kenney and Paula Mills of Auburn; Wendy Lamb of Portland and the hostess and wife, Joyce. The birthday cake was made by daughter Judy McLaughlin and a freezer full of homemade ice cream was enjoyed.

The benefit supper for Bill and Sally Berry last Saturday evening was quite well attended despite the weather. The committee appreciated everyone's involvement.

By MARTA CLEMENTS Last week I reported that there would be an informational meeting concerning kindergarten registration for the 1989-1990 school year. There will be some changes in the places of registration and in the types of pre-kindergarten testing. I will list the times and places of registration, but West Paris parents should rest assured that their children will be registering for the West Paris school. Choose one of the following and bring your child with you to register. • Friday, April 7: 12 noon-6 p.m. Church of Christ, Paris Hill Road, South Paris; • Saturday, April 8: 9 a.m.-1 p.m. Church of Christ, Paris Hill Road, South

 Monday, April 10: 10 a.m.-6 p.m. Head Start Center, Congregational Church, • Wednesday, April 12: 10 a.m.-6 p.m. Harrison Elementary, Harrison. Children from any town in the Oxford Hills School District may register at any of the sites listed above, and the registration will be for the town in which you live. News from our 6th Grade includes a report on Joseph Webb. Joe is in Children's Hospital in Boston for surgery. More surgery is upcoming and a long hospital stay and recovery is expected. We want Joe to know that he is still part of our school and we miss him, so we have devised a schedule that has been sent home with each student. This amounts to a suggestion of when cards and letters could be mailed to Joe to brighten up his stay over the whole period. Of course messages may be sent anytime, but we are hoping to insure that he gets mail every week of his stay. His address is: The Children's Hospital, 300 .ongwood Ave., Boston, Mass. 02115, c/o

Joseph Webb, Room 902 on 9 West. This past Monday, the school was visited by the postmaster from Portland, Kenneth Andre, the business manager, Joseph Meuse, and our local postmistress, Joan Young. An assembly was held and the following children were presented with a 1984 Commemorative Stamp set in appreciation for their displays at the West Paris Post Office during stamp collecting month: Joey Duchesneau, Jon Morgan, Renee Pratt, Jason Bradeen, Jon Haas. Melissa Duchesneau was absent, but received a set also. Then, much to my surprise, Mr. Andre announced that there was someone else to be mentioned. He then presented me with a framed certificate and a letter thanking me for my work with the Benjamin Franklin Stamp Club over the past 10 years and he encouragphilately makes a great lifetime hobby. Classroom activities this week include lots of Easter projects. The Kindergarten and 1st Grade are dying Easter eggs, and making paper eggs for a bulletin board. The 1st-graders are creating Easter cards made like eggs and done with a watercolor wash with crayon resist. Both classes have made Easter baskets. The 1st-graders are learning a new finger play, "Bunnies' Bedtime," for Easter. Norman Allen is the star-of-the-week of CASHING IN HER EGGS—Sadie Gallant turned in the Easter eggs she had dug out of the snow and received cash in exchange from members of the Mills family. Despite the four inches of fresh snow, the children of Andover turned out for Roger Mills' annual Easter egg hunt. Eggs were placed at at various sites around town, and each of the various age groups was assigned an area in which to hunt.

Rotary Club notes At Andover...

The Bethel Rotary Club met at the Elderwood Manor Items Bethel Inn on Tuesday, March 21, for their regular weekly meeting.

Many guests were welcomed, including representatives from all corners of the state and Canada who were attending the Economic Development Forum held at the Bethel Inn. Also welcomed were 10 members from the Rockland Rotary Club who braved slippery roads to do a "club visitation," then take the day to enjoy skiing at Sunday River. The guest speaker was Cathy Newell, director of SAD #44 Adult Ed, who has Woodstock School You've been invited to confer with your child's teacher. Is your first reaction "What has my child done wrong?" In all probability, she or he has done nothing

Schools today are relying more and more on conferences to supplement report cards and other written forms of communication between parents and teachers. Teachers realize that they cannot do the best possible job of educating each child without the help of the child's parents. The parent can supply information about the child that could be very useful to the teacher. And the teacher can offer suggestions to parents on how they can help with the education process at home. The best way to discuss such matters is an informal face-to-face meeting. It gives both you and your child's teacher an opportunity for full exploration of progress, behavior, and the reasons for your child's successes and failures.

Is your next reaction uncertainty? What should I ask? What will I be asked?" Or do you put the whole thing out of your mind until the conference time, letting the chips fall where they may? The teacher will spend considerable time preparing for the conferencegathering records, samples of work, and her/his own thoughts about your child. You, too, should prepare for the conference by knowing what to expect, and then follow up with action afterward. Here are some suggestions for making your next parent-teacher conference

Once you have responded to the teacher's invitation, you should prepare yourself in the following manner: Decide what you want to ask the teacher. Discuss the forthcoming conference with your child to see if there is anything she/he would like you to talk about with the teacher. Check with your spouse and decide what aspects of your child's schoolwork are puzzling or worrying you. Ideally, both parents should attend the conference. Do you have any gripes or complaints? Now is the time to get all the facts about a school situation you may only know about secondhand.

Determine what you can tell the teacher about your child. The teacher sees only one side of your child. There may be things you know about the child that could help the teacher better understand her or him. Tell the teacher you want to see your child's official school records. Review them with the teacher during the Get a babysitter if you have young children. Don't bring either the school child (unless specifically requested) or younger brothers or sisters to the con-Florence Hall and Flora Whitten were ference. They may not only be disrup-

EARL V. COLBY

Earl V. Colby, 54, of West Greenwood, died March 24, 1989, at his home. He was born at Lewiston, Nov. 6, 1934, the son of William P. and Marian Rosenberger Colby. He attended schools in North Waterford and Bethel and received his GED while in the Marine Corps, where he served for nearly 10

He was a heavy equipment operator and an over-the-road truck driver, living in Colorado for several years before returning to Maine. When he returned, he worked for Ekco Tebbets and the Town of Bethel Highway Department before being forced to retire in 1980 due to disability. His avocation was trading, and he was known as "the Yankee trader.' He married Carolyn G. Mills on Aug. 29, 1969, at West Bethel. He served a term as selectman for the Town of Greenwood and had been a member and past commander of the American Legion Jackson-Silver Post in Locke Mills. Mr. Colby was instrumental in forming and serving as adjutant for the Sons of the American Legion. He was a past first vice commander of the Oxford County Council. He is survived by his wife of West Greenwood; two sons, Carl Earl Colby and Brian James Colby, both of West Greenwood; an adopted sister, Renee Rosenberger Ronco of Massachusetts; his stepmother, Esther Colby of Dover, N.H.; his half-brother, Wayne Colby of Dover, N.H.; and two half-sisters, Emilie Parker and Eileen Mattocks, both of New

By CAROLYN COLBY I can't believe I'm writing of death again so soon, and this time it is a member of my own family. My husband Earl died Friday afternoon of a heart attack at home. Hope you don't mind if I brag about him a little bit. He deserves it. Earl was one of the hardest-working people I ever knew in my life. He was always on the go doing something. There wasn't a lazy bone in his body, so it was terrifically hard for him when he became disabled with carpal tunnel and arthritis and unable to work. Work gave his life meaning. Harder still was enduring the tle did they know the painful price he paid for anything he did. I wonder if they would have the guts to do as much as he did. If they could have the same problems for awhile, perhaps we would see. There's a lesson there for us all. Earl had a great sense of humor and was full of "Colbyisms." He was deeply loved by his family and will leave a big empty spot in our lives. From the Bethel Area

Chamber of Commerce The executive board of the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce met on Thursday, March 23.

After lengthy discussion on what is felt is the Chamber's role in Christmas decorating, the board voted to petition the decision of the Bethel Board of Selectmen reported in the paper last week. It was felt that in order to decide what the townspeople want done concerning the Christmas decorating that has been occuring or should be occuring that a discussion at town meeting would be the Funeral services were to be held Tuesbest thing. An article reading: "To see day, at the Greenleaf Funeral Home, in what sum of money the voters will raise Bethel, with the Rev. Norman Rust of- and appropriate to continue with ficiating. > Executive Director Robin Zinchuk reported that the Chamber plans to attend the "Great American Outdoor Adventure and Travel Show" at the Bayside Exposition Hall in Boston April 6-9. It is a joint venture with Outward Bound. Any area businesses who would like to send a representative to volunteer in the Chamber booth are asked to contact the office immediately, at 824-2282, so we can set up a schedule.

It was voted to repair the Chamber information board at the Riverside Rest Area on Rte. 2. President Bill Barter reported on his progress with the new Chamber brochure. He has received one quote and is working on modifying the project to make it cost feasible. Sylvia Clanton, executive director of the Bethel Area Reservation Service, reported that the service has had a very successful season. It was decided to keep a limited basis. A potluck supper/business meeting will be held for all lodging memebers belonging to BARS on April 12, Wednesday evening, at the Chapman Inn, at 6 p.m. All members are urged to attend. It should be a time of fun and fellowship after a long, busy season, as well as a constructive time to discuss how to improve on the BARS operation. It was voted to donate the Christmas lights that the Chamber purchased for the Woodstock Christmas tree to the Woodstock School Parents Association, which has done a great job in organizing WENDALL H. SWEETSER
